HISTORY

Two major conferences (Montréal in 1989 and Paris in 1991) sparked a commitment to make cities safer by going beyond police, courts, and corrections to invest in crime prevention.

In 2006, the National Crime Prevention Centre funded the University of Ottawa to convene 14 Canadian municipalities to become part of what is now CMNCP.

CMNCP becomes a Canadian hub and reference point for addressing crime and community safety at the local level. Incorporation in 2020. Represents over 100 communities across Canada and 50% of the Canadian population.

In 2003, 120 practitioners, elected officials, policy makers, and researchers created the Agenda for a Safer Canada during a National Symposium in Waterloo Region, Ontario.

Between 2009 and 2018, CMNCP completed multiple projects looking at international and national strategies to make communities safer and build local capacity for evidence-based crime prevention approaches.

WHAT WE DO

The Canadian Municipal Network on Crime Prevention (CMNCP) brings together urban, rural, and Indigenous communities across Canada to build capacity, prevent and reduce violence and crime, and foster community safety and well-being (CSWB) through training, research, knowledge exchange, and expertise.

Our work is guided by a broad concept of community safety and well-being that includes thorough local assessments and planning processes, a variety of preventative measures, the mobilization of stakeholders, and public engagement. These efforts expand beyond criminal legal system responses and reduce reliance on enforcement.

CMNCP is a Canadian voice of locally led approaches to crime prevention and community safety.

Together, we:

- Maintain dialogues on common issues, trends, evidence, best and promising practice, and new initiatives.
- Coordinate collaboration, knowledge building, evidence sharing, and training.
- Work with communities to assess local community safety challenges, create plans, and develop crime prevention initiatives.
- Partner with different orders of government.
- Support policy and program development.
- Increase the expert knowledge and skills for planning, coordinating, and implementing crime prevention and community safety initiatives among municipal staff.
- Foster leadership and engagement among municipal authorities to promote community safety and well-being based on existing evidence and collaborative initiatives.

We understand that municipalities are the order of government most able to work with local agencies and neighbourhoods to identify specific service needs and tackle the multiple causes of crime in high-risk areas.
